With Guest speaker Jay Brewer, Clinic Manager Physiologist Nuffield Health Wellbeing

Caffeine, energy and performance.

Many of us feel the need for our cup of coffee with breakfast or as we arrive to the office, it's a habitual part of our day to start work with a quick perk from caffeine without thinking about the consequences of its actions or the reason why we feel the need for it in the first place. Many of us can remember a time when we didn't need caffeine but still had high energy levels and with the shift of English culture away from 'pub culture' to 'café culture', caffeine may now be the most widely consumed drug in the country. The presentation will take a look at the positives and negatives of caffeine, how it works within our bodies to excite us and recommended intake levels. There will also be information on how to naturally boost energy levels without stimulants and boost performance as a result.
